Fuse is a residency for classical musicians who are excited to expand their artistic practice through collaborative play and interdisciplinary exploration. Supported by accomplished mentors and an environment that encourages experimentation and creative risk-taking, musicians are encouraged to create, research, and develop new approaches to their practice in Banff Centre's unrivalled mountain environment.

This program is open to classically trained instrumentalists, including woodwind, brass, string, and percussion musicians, as well as singers and composers.

Learn, experiment and play alongside our exceptional faculty of internationally recognized artists, including Aga Khan Master Musicians, Nadar, Architek Percussion, Jane Mitchell (Aurora Orchestra), Jessie Maryon Davies, and Krystina Marcoux, and Keir GoGwilt, Conor Hanick, Miranda Cuckson, and Julia Eichten of American Modern Opera Company (AMOC).
